Two Killed In Subway Crash Near City

2 TRUCKS PILE INTO CAR AFTER IT RAMS PIER

Glen L. Cline, 25, Shenandoah, A. B. Ensminger, 51, Bucyrus, Fatally Injured.

THREE OTHERS HURT

Accident Raises Richland County's Death Toll For Year to 28.

Two men were killed instantly and three others were injured, one seriously, when an automobile and two trucks piled up in the Erie underpass on U. S. route 30-S five miles west of Mansfield at 11:45 p. m. Friday.

Killed outright were Glen Layton Cline, 25, of Shenandoah, believed to have been a passenger in the car, and Arthur B. Ensminger, 51, Bucyrus, driver of one of the trucks. Other Ohio traffic mishaps killed five persons last night and today.

The double fatality brought Richland county's traffic toll to 28 for the year, eight more than during all of 1940. Seven of the deaths have occurred in the past three weeks. The traffic toll on this date last year was 16.

Injured in the crash last night and taken to General hospital were James D. Kuntz, 28, Shiloh, believed the driver of the car; Joseph Sherbundy, 24, and Carl J. Miller, 59, both of Bucyrus, who were riding with Ensminger.

Albert Cox, driver of the second truck, and Harold Downs, who was with him, escaped injury. Deputy sheriffs said they were from Pierceston, Ind. They were in a tractor-trailer owned by the Motor Cargo, Inc.

Deputy Sheriffs and C. C. Gongwere and J. R. Hetler said the car in which the Shiloh men were riding struck the west end of the center abutment of the underpass and overturned in the north traffic lane. The car was headed toward Mansfield.

Failing to see the wrecked car in the underpass, Ensminger then drove his light truck into it from the east side, officers said. The Motor Cargo truck, following the other truck, crashed into the wreckage of the other two vehicles.

Wreckage of Car, Trucks In Which Two Died

The demolished passenger car and two damaged trucks in which two men were killed and three injured just before midnight Friday at the Erie underpass west of the city are shown in the above photos. At the upper left curious youngsters examine the car in which Glen L. Cline, 25, of Shenandoah died. The car struck the center post in the subway, damaging the cement pier. At the right is the Ohio Fuel Gas company truck which crashed into the car, killing Arthur B. Ensminger, 51, Bucyrus, the driver, and injuring two passengers. Occupants of the truck in the lower photo escaped injury although the truck crashed into the rear of the Gas company truck. James D. Kuntz, 28, Shiloh, riding in the car, was critically injured.

PREPARE FOR TAX DEMANDS

Mansfield Councilmen Ready To Attend Columbus Parley On State Surplus.

Mansfield councilmen seeking a share of the state's sales tax surplus in hopes of devoting it to improving the badly-neglected municipal airport were heartened today at the progress of the campaign and continued plans to attend a state-wide meeting of protesting municipality executives in Columbus next Thursday.

Mayor Frank J. Lausche of Cleveland and members of his Republican council yesterday attacked Gov. John W. Bricker's refusal to ask the state legislature to distribute part of the surplus to local governmental units

Lausche has continually maintained that the surplus for 1941 will be $20,000,000 rather than the $11,000,000 to which Bricker had admitted. H. D. Defenbacher, state finance director, yesterday stated that the surplus would be about $16,000,000.

Councilman Fred Miller intends to lead a Mansfield committee which will go to Columbus to ask a share of the surplus for the city. Mayor William J. Locke has announced that he believes the movement "political" and will not ask a share for Mansfield.

Lausche and his council charged that Bricker has been deducting expenditures to be made out of 'Biggest Bomber' Makes Final Flight Test, Gets Check-up.

SANTA MONICA, Cal.—(INS)—The $3,500,000 Douglas B-19 bomber, the largest military plane ever constructed, has completed its final test flight and today was undergoing a last check-up before being turned over to the army air corps.

The 42-ton sky dreadnaught was flown to Los Angeles Municipal airport near the Douglas Aircraft plant at El Segundo after a leisurely four hour flight from March Field.

Lieut. Col. Stanley M. Umstead, the army's chief test pilot who has piloted the B-19 ever since its initial flight last June, was at the controls.

After final overhauling and a detailed check-up the huge plane will be flown to Wright Field, Dayton, O.

EX-BANKER DIES

FT. LAUDERDALE, Fla—(INS)—Arthur M. Aiken, 66, former comptroller of the Chase National Bank of New York, died here last night.

Richland Jail to House 'Long Term' Shelby Prisoners

Richland county commissioners signed an agreement today with the city of Shelby for keeping Shelby prisoners in the county jail for 75 cents a day per prisoner. The contract covers a two-year period, but its only for "long-termers." The Shelby jail will still be used for lodging overnight prisoners.

Persons who receive sentences for violation of Shelby city ordinances will be brought here by Shelby police to serve their sentences, under provisions of the contract. Payment will be made quarterly for the prisoners' keep.

Commissioners said the county began keeping Shelby's prisoners during the past year, but only a few of them have been brought to the jail here.

Shelby does not have adequate facilities to handle prisoners for long periods of time, commissioners said.

Railroads Want 10 Per Cent Rate Boost to Offset Wages

(By International News Service)

CHICAGO — A move by railroad management to seek an increase of at least 10 per cent in passenger and freight rates throughout the nation was disclosed today.

The railroads will ask the interstate commerce commission to approve the increases to offset wage increases, estimated at $325,000,000 a year, which were granted in the recent settlement of the rail wage dispute.

The wage settlement was formally ratified by leaders of the "Big Five" operating brotherhoods in a Chicago meeting last night, and orders were sent out today calling off a nationwide strike which otherwise would have gone into effect at 6 a. m. tomorrow.

While the labor leaders were meeting traffic executives held a closed session in another Chicago hotel. The executives revealed unofficially after the meeting that J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American railroads, would be instructed to ask for the rate increases in Washington.

The executives calculated that a 10 per cent increase in passenger fares would add $55,000,000 a year to the combined revenue of all the nation's railroads. In order to fully offset the wage increases, according to these calculations, it would be necessary to increase freight rates somewhat more than 10 per cent.

LINK TO AFRICA

Clippers Take Off on New Tri-Continent Route.

MIAMI, Fla. —(U.P.)— Two big clippers, carrying 30 passengers, took off in a clearing fog today to inaugurate a new tri-continent airline linking the United States directly with Africa—the newest theater of the war—for the first time.

Thus Pan American Airways began regular service over a second trans-Atlantic route, another line to carry diplomats, the statesmen, the military leaders and the bomber-ferry pilots whom the war shuttles back and forth between the two hemispheres.

The Puerto Rican clipper, the four-motored flying boat carrying nine passengers and 376 pounds of mail, took off from PAA's marine base at 6:50 a. m. EST. Take-off of the clipper Comet from Municipal airport, with 21 passengers, was delayed by a ground fog until 8:58 a. m.

Bingo Game Leaves Bellville Street Fair $800 In the Red

Because the state department of agriculture objected to a bingo game at the Bellville fair in September, winners of premiums at the fair are still waiting for $800 in prize money, it was revealed today.

The fair board's financial troubles were taken to the county commissioners who explained that the $800 due the board from the state was being held up as a result of the bingo game.

The Bellville board conferred with the commissioners this morning, but the fair officials received only bad news. C. L. Mitchell, chairman of the commissioners, said the county could do nothing about allocating the fair funds until the state approves the release of the funds.

Mitchell said the money the Bellville fair receives from the state is distributed by the commissioners after the state orders it paid to the fair board. Members of the board said they depended upon the state contribution to help them pay their prizes.

Commissioners quoted members of the fair board as saying that they permitted the bingo game to operate because "some one in the county who is influential with the state administration" told them the game would not disqualify the fair for receiving state funds.

Mitchell said state inspectors examine the records of all fairs and must approve them before funds are allocated.

BATTLE RAGES IN 31-BELOW MOSCOW COLD

LIBYA FIGHT FLARES

Clashes Reported South of Tobruk as Lull In Desert War Ends.

(By Associated Press)

Fighting on the Moscow front, raging amid temperatures 31 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit, swirled to a new peak of violence today as Adolf Hitler's invasion armies claimed the capture of seven towns while the Russians were reported to have broken through German lines in the Kalinin sector, 90 miles northwest of Moscow.

A German military spokesman said Nazi troops had taken Nozhaisk, 57 miles west of the capital, and Klin, 50 miles northwest.

Nazi front-line dispatches also reported new gains in a side-sweeping movement east of Orel and Kursh, mid-way between the Moscow front and the Soviet drive in the Ukraine, declaring that five towns had been captured in an arc 60 miles east of Orel.

The towns were listed as Malo-Arkhangelsh, between Orel and Kursh, 230 miles south of Moscow; Livny, Novosil, Mtsensk and Chern, near Orel.

A Reuter's (British News Agency) dispatch said the Russian counter-offensive in the Kalinin sector was continuing and that the Red army had inflicted a heavy blow on two German infantry divisions — about 30,000 men — and captured an important point.

Dispatches to the Soviet newspaper Pravda said the battle south of Moscow was increasing in ferocity, with the Germans attacking constantly north of Tula, 100 miles below the capital, and cutting the Tula-Moscow highway at several points.

STANDS GUARD FOR 42 HOURS

'Forgotten Sentry' Obeys Orders; Watches Convoy —And More.

(By International News Service)

BALTIMORE, Md—Refreshed by his first sleep in 42 hours, Private Victor Golas, the "forgotten sentry" of Company H, 104th infantry, headed back to his headquarters at Camp Edwards, Mass., today obviously a bit perplexed by army life and regulations.

Army officers may not agree, but Private Golas (drafted last March at Housatonic, Mass.,) thought he was being a good soldier when he obeyed orders to remain on duty "until relieved" directing a military convoy through Baltimore.

Private Golas didn't know that the army might forget him. He followed orders literally and stayed at his post, through rain and darkness, long after the convoy disappeared.

The draftee was dropped by his division at a Baltimore railroad crossing Thursday at 1:30 p. m. with instructions to remain on duty until he was picked up again.

Looking smart and trim in his khaki uniform, Private Golas watched the convoy pass by hour after hour. It began to rain, but the young soldier remained. The last of the convoy passed by at 1:30 a. m. Friday. Still no relief.

Remembering his orders, Private Golas remained through the night and all day Friday. He munched on such food as he could find in his army pack and also on bits brought to him by interested passersby.

Late yesterday he became discouraged and turned himself over to the military police at Baltimore. Once during the day military police came looking for him but he was not at his post. He explained he went into a railroad control tower to get warm.

SAVE MAN, HE DIES ANYHOW

Police Halt Suicide Attempt, But Can't Stop Heart Attack.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. —(INS)— Kansas City police today hardly knew whether to record their trip to the home of 57-year-old William Farrow as a success or as a failure.

They were called by neighbors because Farrow was standing on the roof of his home and threatening to commit suicide by jumping, and they succeeded in persuading Farrow to descend peacefully to the ground.

A few minutes later, however, Farrow died of a heart attack.

HELD IN MURDER

Secretary Charged With Torch Slaying of Employer.

HOUSTON, Tex.—(INS)—Blonde Helen O'Keefe, pretty 30-year-old stenographer, today was ordered held without bond for the torch murder last Nov. 12 of 65-year-old J. C. Franklin, investment broker whom she served as secretary for 11 years.

Miss O'Keefe has been free on $7,100 bonds, but District Attorney Dan Jackson declared today he would not again agree to her release on any bond. Judge Langston King issued an order canceling her bond.

The Harris county grand jury yesterday returned an indictment charging the modishly-dressed stenographer with "murder with malice aforethought." Attorney Jackson did not indicate whether it was this, or some new turn in the evidence, that led him to tighten restrictions against her.

British Rush Preparations In Singapore

Australia Set to Send Tank Troops to Indies as Far East Crisis Darkens; Japs Recall Shipping Officials, Two U. S. Embassy Attaches.

(By Associated Press)

Great Britain suddenly recalled all her fighting men to their posts in Singapore today as the Far East crisis hung in delicate balance and a British broadcast reported that Australia had arranged to send tank troops to help defend the Dutch East Indies in the event of war.

Officers and men of all services—fleet, air and army—were told to report immediately at Singapore, completing a state of readiness at Britain's "Gibraltar of the Orient."

Trucks and other vehicles were dispatched to downtown points in central Singapore to transport the men to their ships, flying fields and army posts.

There was no explanation whether the order meant a sudden new emergency.

Simultaneously, all non-Britons were forbidden to leave British Malaya without special government permission. Japanese waiting to sail for Thailand were forced to disembark and their baggage was brought ashore.

* * *

Other rapid-fire developments paced the darkening situation:

1. The big Japanese steamship company, Nippon Yusen Kaisha, called home the chiefs of its Singapore and Bombay offices.

2. Without explanation, Japan recalled two attaches of the Japanese embassy in Washington. (The German radio identified them as military attaches, Col. Tadamuri and Lieut.-Col. Ariuo-Uchida.)

3. A Domei (Japanese news agency) dispatch from Bombay said Japanese nationals in India and Ceylon had asked Tokyo to send another repatriation ship. Many Japanese there had already been taken home on the S. S. Hiye Maru.

4. Australia, already bolstered by new secret military plans in cooperation with her allies, joined the United States, Britain and the Dutch East Indies in a declaration on their position in the face of possible Japanese aggression.

The Australian Associated Press said the statement could be summarized as follows:

"While the situation is such that further developments may occur at any moment, it would seem that Japan is still at a stage when she is feeling to ascertain how far she can go without provoking war with both the dominions of the

TOKYO HURLS NEW DEFIANCE

Economic Council Declares Attempts to Halt Asia Order Will Be Repulsed.

(By United Press)

TOKYO—Japan will "repulse" all efforts to halt construction of a new order in East Asia "regardless of how intensely hostile powers" may attempt to interfere, the important East Asia economic council declared today as the press renewed bitter attacks on the United States and Russia.

Both the economic council and the Tokyo newspapers asserted that the next move to decide peace or war was up to President Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

The newspapers charged that the White House released the Japanese reply to President Roosevelt (disavowing intention of aggression or conquest) to the press in violation of diplomatic practice and in order to "blame" Japan for collapse of the Washington peace negotiations.

The economic council statement was regarded by observers as of greatest importance in the current Far Eastern crisis and came at the conclusion of a three-day session, which had been adressed

Governor Says Structural Failure Caused Bridge Collapse.

HARTFORD, Conn—(INS)—Collapse of the $4,500,000 Connecicut river bridge between Hartford and East Hartford, which brought death to 14 workers and injury to 17 others, today was attributed to structural failure by Gov. Robert A. Hurley, after studying evidence obtained in an investigation.

The bridge fell when temporary piling, supporting girders collapsed, sending structual steel and 31 workmen tumbling 100 feet into the river.

SNOW POSSIBLE

Weatherman Forecasts Cloudy Skies, Colder Weather.

Manslielders, fog-plagued for more than a week, breathed cold, crisp air again today as temperatures dropped to near normal readings, ending the unseasonably warm early December weather.

The weather forecast promised somewhat colder weather, cloudy skies with the possibility of snow flurries tonight. Sunday is to be fair with moderately cold weather.

Following an all-time December high of 65 degrees recorded Thursday, the mercury slipped downward, registering a December high mark of 59 degrees yesterday. The thermometer showed a 30 reading this morning, two below freezing.

Average for the past 24 hours was 44.5 degrees, 12 higher than the 16-year average.

PATROLMAN SHOT

Police Have Only Lost Hat as Clue In Death.

NEW YORK—(INS)—Patrolman Thomas Casey, 34, was found shot to death today at Lexington avenue and 52nd street in midtown Manhattan four hours after completing his tour of duty at midnight.

The doorman of a nearby building reported seeing a youth running from the scene in such haste that his hat flew off. With the hat their only clue, police began search for the slayer.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD — Young-as-you-feel department:

Visitor to the set of "The Night Before Christmas" during his stay in Hollywood was Gen. Julius F. Howell of Bristol, Va., national commander of the United Confederate Veterans. Gen. Howell is 96.

Player in the film is Harry Davenport, 76. Harry Davenport is one of our venerated oldsters, a spry white-haired lad who has been in the theater since he was 5. After meeting alert Gen. Howell, spry Harry said he felt that he had somehow been exposed: if Gen. Howell could be that way at 96, how could Harry Davenport keep on impressing people, he being all of 20 years younger?

Edward G. Robinson, star of the film, later was pressing Harry for an account of his off-screen activities. Harry confessed to considerable garden-puttering; a newer interest of his is the making of splints and artificial fingers and hands from plastic wood; and a still newer hobby is the cutting and polishing of western stones and rocks:

CASTING item: Adeline DeWalt Reynolds, for whom movie life began at 80 as the grandma in "Come Live With Me," is now on her third film role. Second was in "Tales of Manhattan," in the Charles Laugton sequence of the many-starred movie. At 81, she now plays Laughton's mother in "The Tuttles of Tahiti."

Birthday note: Bright - eyed, white mustached Major Frederick Farrell celebrated his 81st birthday as an actor in "Joan of Paris."

The birthday, to hear him tell it, was quite an occasion for he talked French with Michele Morgan, German with Paul Henreid the ex-Austrian, Italian with a set visitor. He also got arrested by the Nazis and, during the lunch hour, won 23 cents at blackjack.

It was his 510th movie role. As birthdays go, Major Farrell's 81st still had not quite the excitement of his 50th. He celebrated that with a parachute jump.

* * *

MAJOR FARRELL, five feet six inches, of soldierly bearing, did not discover the movies until he was 63. Though he plays Frenchmen usually, he was born in Athlone, Ireland. He has spent much time in many places — in France 17 years, in Germany eight, in Italy two, in Vienna one. Eighteen years ago he joined a crowd in Los Angeles watching a movie company at work. He heard a man call for 20 more British soldiers—at "$5 a day and beans" —and he volunteered.

"Kinda small for soldiering, aren't you?" An assistant director surveyed Farrell's five-feet-six skeptically.

"Her Majesty, Queen Victoria, didn't think so for 33 years," Farrell retorted. "I served with her bodyguards."

"All right. You'll be a corporal. Here—go get a uniform."

Said the Major: "What if my men saw me playing a corporal in the movies? I'll be a commissioned officer or nothing."

The assistant considered. "OK," he said at last, "you'll be a commissioned officer—but it's still five bucks a day and beans."

Because of his illness, the column of General Hugh S. Johnson does not appear in today's News-Journal. He hopes to write his column for Monday as usual.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

The Broadway All-American.

AS YOU know, this is the season. This is the time of the year, at a drop of a kick, every man, woman and child picks an All-American football team. And why not? Americans love prizes and champions; that's why you have Academy Awards and Critics' Circles and Pulitzer prizes. That's why you have Miss America and the World's Champion Hog-caller and the Empire State Building and Bette Davis and the Rose Bowl game.

Well, Broadway has its champs and "best players" and wonderful extremes. So it is no wonder that I am tempted to recall the past season's personality touchdowns and record my own version of Broadway's All-American.

* * *

LEFT END: Lenore Lemmon. Great on the defensive at spotting and intercepting any passes thrown in her direction—and brother, they have been plenty. A shrewd mousetrapper because of her unrivalled experience in such noted mousetraps as Fefe's Monte Carlo, El Morocco, and The Stork.

LEFT GUARD: Sherman Billingsley. Tops on defense. He can keep anybody out of his territory, and often does—regardless of beauty, money, or social importance. He uses the velvet rope system—soft, but effective. Ask the players who've been stopped cold at the doorway of 3 East 53rd.

CENTER: George Abbott. This position requires a man who can get a play started and keep it running. George does this. (See "Best Foot Forward"). Alternates: Oscar Serlin, Herman Shumlin, Vinton Freedly.

RIGHT GUARD: Fefe Ferry. This boy makes a great combination with Guard Billingsley and for the same reason. In fact, cafe society is waiting eagerly for the moment when they inadvertently bar each other.

RIGHT TACKLE: Tommy Manville. Great for running interference for blonds. Great money player. In fact, a very fast playboy, all around.

QUARTERBACK: Fiorello La Guardia. A triple-threat man. Runs, passes and kicks like mad, especially when the Board of Estimate gets him riled. A great field general. Also doubles as cheer-leader and band master. Very hands should any small fires break out in the stands.

LEFT HALFBACK: Paulette Goddard. A standout in hipper-dipper plays. Fast, agile (did you see her with Fred Astaire?) and difficult to stop, once she gets past the scrimmage line. Alternate: Rita Hayworth.

RIGHT HALFBACK: George Jean Nathan. This is the blocking back and requires a lot of beef. Nathan's beefs are loud, long, and legendary. He operates well from a T-formation, but prefers Scotch-and-soda or beer in the corner table at 21. Should be benched if the team plays Sean O'Casey, Lian O'Flaherty, Paul Vincent Carroll, William Saroyan or Julie Haydon, because his resistance crumbles in such situations.

FULLBACK: William Saroyan. Rates high for deceptive talents, broken-field running, trick plays of any sort. (Did you see "The Beautiful People," fans?) Must be watched because of his tendency to run very fast—toward the wrong goal line.

MOVE TO BARE FUTURE U. S. 'WAR PROGRAM'

Senators Use Giant Arms Bill As Lever to Pry Out Data On AEF Possibility.

WASHINGTON—Using the $8,200,000,000 arms-and lend-lease bill as a vehicle, senate non-interventionists today launched a drive to force the administration to bare its future "arsenal of democracies" program and say whether a second A. E. F. is planned.

The plan was disclosed as the senate appropriations committee was summoned into session to consider means of speeding action on the huge arms bill, which passed the house late yesterday by a vote of 309 to 5.

Sen. Gerald Nye, N. D., ranking Republican on the appropriations committee, announced that he would propose that Secretary of War Stimson and Secretary of the Navy Knox be summoned to bare "war plans" of the administration.

The North Dakota senator also indicated that he will ask that the report of the joint army and navy board, said to include a potential plan for an A. E. F. of 5,000,000 men, be disclosed.

"We should know how big an army is sought and where it is to be used. If those who have been telling us that no A. E. F. is planned are telling the truth, we should know why these huge increased appropriations and authorizings are being sought.

"The people are asking these questions and angrily condemn secrecy. The people feel that there is a secret plan for an A. E. F."

The committee, controlled by administration members, was expected to reject investigation proposals.

Sen. Carter Glass (D) Va., chairman of the committee, stepped into the breach caused by the death of Sen. Adams (D) Colo., and decided to handle the $8,200,000,000 bill himself as chairman of the deficiency sub-committee.

A militant supporter of President Roosevelt's foreign policy, he was expected to fight the investigation proposals of non-interventionists.

WARD, FOOTBALL AUTHORITY, DIES

Veteran of Gridiron and Ohio Legislature Was GOP Party Whip.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Grant P. Ward, veteran Ohio legislator and a recognized authority in Ohio football circles, died last night of a heart attack. He was 54.

Serving his second term in the state senate, Ward collapsed upon leaving the capitol but succeeded in reaching the Neil House nearby. He died there a few hours later as the fire department's inhalator squad and physicians worked to save his life.

Ward, who had served four terms in the Ohio house of representatives before going to the senate, had been ill for three months, friends said, and recently returned from a vacation in New York.

He was the Republican party whip in the senate and his death elicited words of condolence from Democratic and Republican political leaders alike.

Gov. John W. Bricker described Ward as an "able legislator . . . one of the most experienced men in the assembly. I am very, very sorry to hear this."

Ward played varsity center on the 1912 Ohio State football team and later served as a member of Coach Jack Wilce's staff. He was a football analyst for a Columbus newspaper and for the past 13 years had broadcast Ohio State grid games.

He entered the navy during the World war. While in the service, he was commissioned as ensign aboard the U. S. S. Newport.

His death reduced the Republican majority in the senate to 18-17.

Ward is survived by his widow, Mrs. Helen Ward, two sons, Jack, an Ohio State student, and Larry, who attends North high school here, and two sisters, Mrs. Alice DeFreese of Columbus and Mrs. Harry Linebaugh of nearby Grove City.

BRIDE NO. 5 PACKS TROUSSEAU AND BUYS TICKET FOR RENO

(By United Press)

NEW YORK — Mrs. Thomas Franklin Manville No. 5 packed her trousseau today and bought a ticket for the route of her predecessors—to Reno.

Her career as a Manville bride was unique in one respect—it was the shortest of any of his wives. It was 17 days from the time she walked out of a Broadway show to marry Manville until Thursday, when she walked out of his Park avenue apartment.

Mrs. Manville, the former Bonnie Edwards, 22, further announced: "I don't want any cash settlement. I don't want any alimony. I don't want any money from Tommy at all."

This startled Manville, 47, who had insisted that their ages made no difference.

"That's strange," he said. "Cash settlement was agreed on only yesterday in the presence of her lawyer and my attorney.

"It is a sizeable sum. I don't care to reveal how much. The agreement contains a proviso that she is to get the dough only when the divorce is granted."

Mrs. Manville said Manville had given her a check, but only to cover her expenses in getting a divorce.

LETS CONTRACT

Y.W.C.A. To Remodel Building During Holiday Vacation.

Contract for the remodelling program at the Y. W. C. A. that will provide more adequate facilities in the way of quarters for the office secretary, workshop craft classes and additional space for group meetings, was awarded yesterday to the J. H. Glasener Construction company.

The program will cost less than $400, Miss Bertha A. Gregory, executive secretary, said today, and the work is expected to be done during the holiday vacation period.

Elimination of partitions and the construction of others form the major part of the program, contract for which was awarded jointly by the Y. W. C. A. advisory board and building committee at a meeting held yesterday afternoon. Mrs. R. G. Averill is chairman of the building committee and the board was represented by Mrs. Lester Redding and Harry Black.

Laff-a-Day

Out on Helen avenue the other day there was an accident involving a dog, a boy, and a motorist, but the only damage done was to a little boy's feelings and a little dog's nose. The boy was calling his dog to the other side of the street, when the animal picked just the time to cross that Floyd Dent was driving home from work. Thinking his pet was killed, the boy gave a shriek, and the dog yelped as the tire hit him and knocked him aside. Hearing the noise, neighbors came running, while Dent stopped the car and went back to see what had happened. On the steps of his home, the boy sat with his dog in his arms, crying as if his heart would break, while the dog, unhurt except for a cut on the nose, tried to comfort its master by wagging his tail.

Absent-minded professors are no longer novelties, but an absent-minded postmaster gives a new twist to an old story, and that is why postal employes are still chuckling over the boner one of their number pulled. Assistant Postmaster W. T. Houston tried to light the end of a red lead pencil for a cigaret the other day at the height of the rush hour. Fellow workers said that he asked for a match several times before he realized what he was trying to do.

SENATORS URGE ACTION TO GET LAW THROUGH

Byrd Leads Battle to Bring House-Approved Measure Out of Committee.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — A battle to prevent shelving of anti-strike legislation until after Christmas was opened in the senate today with a showdown expected early next week.

Supporters of legislation to curb defense strikes proposed speedy senate consideration on the drastic house-approved Smith bill, so that a measure could be enacted into law within the next two weeks.

The issue is expected to come to a head Monday when Sen. Connally (D.), Tex., asks for consideration of his "seize-freeze" bill, and the senate labor committee meets to take up the Smith bill.

Leading the fight against any delay was Sen. Byrd (D.), Va., who termed quick action "imperative," and said that the Smith bill presents the only opportunity for completed legislative action on the part of congress before the holidays.

Urging approval of the Smith bill, Byrd pointed out that "if another bill is passed by the senate, it would go to the house as an original measure, necessitating committee consideration and house action, and then, if amended, it would come back to the senate for conference."

Byrd said the Ball bill, sponsored by Sen. Ball (R.), Minn., which applies principles of the railway labor act to all industrial disputes, is not strong enough. He termed Connally's proposal to widen the president's authority to seize struck defense plants, freeze open and closed shop conditions, and create a board to handle wage adjustments, a "milk and water bill."

Several members of the labor committee agreed with Byrd on the need for immediate action, but it was believed that sentiment in the group is overwhelmingly opposed to the Smith bill, which freezes open and closed shops; bans mass picketing and jurisdictional strikes; requires labor unions to register and submit financial statements, and calls for a secret ballot before strikes can be ordered.

Indications grew that the labor committee, recognizing the need for using the house measure as a vehicle for getting legislation through the senate and into a conference between the two houses, might substitute provisions of the Ball bill, and then report it out.

Children Present 'Christmas Carol' At Loudonville

The Children's Theater will don make-up and costumes again for a special performance of Dickens' "Christmas Carol," before the Loudonville Rotary club members, their wives and guests.

Rehearsals are now under way for the performance Tuesday night, Dec. 19, with Harold McCuen, Children's Theater director, in charge of production.

All thoughts of work were dispensed with last night, however, in view of the annual Children's Theater Christmas party at the home of George Porterfield, 278 West Fourth street.

The Loudonville production will be presented in the form of living pictures with Carol Ann Thompson as narrator. John Bishop will enact the role of "Scrooge."

Others in the cast include Judy Maxwell, Doris Alverson, John Colby, George Ridenour, George Porterfield and Bettie Gibson.

BRITISH CALL MEN TO BATTLE POSTS IN EAST

Japs Recall Shippers, Two U. S. Embassy Attaches as Crisis Darkens.

British empire and the United States.

"We are fully alive to the Japanese threat and are not afraid of it."

In Chungking, an official Chinese statement called Japan's reply to President Roosevelt's inquiry an insult to the intelligence of the American people and its publication "another rude setback to Japan's policy of backstairs intrigue."

Mr. Roosevelt had asked Japan why she was massing troops in French Indo-China, adjoining Thailand.

In Washington, informed quarters said flatly the Japanese answer had contributed nothing toward easing the explosive situation.

The Japanese had explained that the Indo-China reinforcements were sent as principally "precautionary measures," countering Chinese troop movements in the north.

In Tokyo, a member of the Japanese privy council, Emperor Hirohito's highest advisory group, foreshadowed a slackening of Japan's belligerent attitude by urging the appointment of a special joint commission to attempt to solve the Pacific problem without recourse to war.

Harvard-educated Count Kentaro Kaneko said this was "the only proper way of solving the present critical situation that I can see." Such a commission, he said, would be invited to meet either in Japan or the United States.

Negotiations, however, were in abeyance pending the delivery to Secretary Hull of Japan's decision as to whether she would choose conciliation or further attempts at conquest in the Far East.

A well-informed political observer in Tokyo charged that the United States was attempting to "pass the buck" to Japan by asking pointed questions about her activities and troop dispositions.

Japanese officials expressed the view that both capitals would "continue with sincerity to try to find a common formula for a peaceful solution."

Suspense Mounts In Far East Situation

WASHINGTON—The delicate Far Eastern situation generated mounting suspense today despite the temporizing answer by Japan to President Roosevelt's inquiries on troop movements in French Indo-China which appeared to be threatening peace in the Pacific.

Any act of aggression by those troops probably would precipitate a general war in the Far East. Japan, however, denied that the troops were there for aggressive purposes—an attitude indicating a desire to keep that situation from boiling over, if possible.

But Japan's attitude may change if Russia suffers serious defeats at the hands of Germany in the near future or if the Libyan campaign goes badly for Great Britain.

Of more importance in determining the future of U. S.-Japanese relations—unless the militarists in Indo-China get out of control of the central government—will be the answer Tokyo makes to the memorandum by Secretary of State Cordell Hull of Nov. 26. That document set forth the basic American principles and their application to the Far East, including demands for Japan to get out of China and French Indo-China.

Japan's two envoys, Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura and Saburo Kurusu, who have been representing their government in the exploratory discussions here, indicated yesterday that the reply to the memorandum was being prepared carefully by Tokyo. They said press reports had conveyed more information as to its probable nature than their official dispatches.

FIGHT RAGES IN 31-BELOW COLD

Fighting Becomes More Fierce Around Moscow as Libya Desert Battle Resumes.

bound Leningrad, Hitler's high command acknowledged the spread of Soviet counter-punches but declared the Russians' attempts to break out of the old Czarist capital had been repulsed "with high and bloody losses."

Soviet reports said Leningrad's defense armies had registered new gains in the Tikhvin setctor, 100 miles east of Leningrad, where the Germans have been attempting to break through to Joi the Finns, and reported that Soviet troops were "taking one position after another."

Simultaneously, violent new action flamed on the sands of the Libyan desert battlefield, after a lull which had seen both sides rallying their forces for a possible final showdown fight.

"New and heavy battles have started in North Africa," the German high command announced tersely.

An Italian communique reported sharp fighting had broken out between advanced British and Italian forces in the Bir El Gobi sector, 40 miles south of Tobruk, and that the battle was continuing.

"Both sides are active and trying to control the initiative," a Berlin spokesman said.

Meanwhile, Great Britain announced that her declarations of war against Finland, Hungary and Rumania would take effect at one minute after midnight tonight, Greenwich time (7:01 p. m. EST Saturday) because the three nations refused to withdraw from the Russian war.

While conceding that the declarations of war would not materially change the situation, the British explained that the chief difference would be at the peace conference, when the three nations "will be sitting on the other side of the table."

Authoritative London quarters said Finland alone replied to the British note and that her reply was "entirely unsatisfactory."

A British spokesman said it had become "increasingly clear ever since last July that the Finnish government in fact was waging war against Russia for purposes of territorial aggrandizement," instead of a purely defensive war.

News of the British war declaration overshadowed Finland's celebrations marking the 24th anniversary of her independence, but the Finnish people took cheer from Field Marshal Baron Mannerheim's statement to the Finnish army that the hardest part of its job was over.

On the Russian front, a bulletin from Adolf Hitler's field headquarters asserted that fierce Soviet counter-attacks had been repulsed with heavy losses in the Donets river bend—presumably in the Stalino sector, about 65 miles northwest of Taganrog.

Soviet dispatches said the Germans had been thrown back from a new line along the Mius river, with Red army troops out-flanking the line in a sweep around Dmitrovsk, 15 miles northeast of Stalino.

The Russian radio said 1,500 German army trucks had been subjected to violent aerial bombardment as they attempted to cross the river by pontoon bridges and barges.

German losses in the bloody retreat from Rostov-on-Don were placed by the Russians at 23,000 killed and wounded.

The Rome radio said three Italian divisions, as well as Rumanian and Crotian reinforcements, had arrived to bolster the Germans retreating along the Sea of Azov, where the Russians were reported to have advanced more than six miles beyond Taganrog, 40 miles west of Rostov.

The Soviet information bureau declared that Red army defenders of the capital yesterday "beat off several fierce enemy attacks and improved their positions in a number of sectors by counter-attacks," in one of which 10,000 Germans were killed.

THEATER PIONEER DIES

DAYTON—(AP)—James F. Potts, who opened the first motion picture house in Portsmouth, is dead at 73. He formerly owned and operated theaters in Cincinnati.

FORMER OFFICIAL DIES

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, December 7.

SUNDAY'S horoscope is noteworthy because of its strange, sudden and wholly unpredictable and inexplicable occurrences, affecting all phases of life. There may be quick changes in plans, aims and environs, with a chain of peculiar situations to be definitely grasped and turned into good account, with friendly support and encouragement if not inspired by elders, old institutions or perhaps some quietly spiritual or occult sources.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of peculiar, intriguing, sudden and quick changing events. There may be unplanned moves, travel, change of position and contacts, with elders, old institutions or strange associations assisting to surprising progress and advantage. It would be well when such decisions are to be made to heed the intuitions but be reasonable and practical and much benefit and happiness will accrue.

For Monday, December 8.

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for an extremely interesting, energetic and eventful day, with all the activities, both in business and private life, moving in exciting and constructive grooves and at high tempo. The energies and forces may be all keyed to great accomplishment, but there is danger of being carried away and leaving loopholes for deception, fraud or imposition from sources little suspected. Forge ahead, but be alert to false friends and don't be over extravagant in the pursuit of pleasure, or show.

Those whose birthday it is may be on the eve of a year of very definite accomplishment; all their forces and faculties being keyed to high gear. New and bold projects succeed, but be conservative in use of funds. Keep down expenditures where possible. Also be alert to trickery, duplicity and double-dealing especially from little suspected sources. Alleged friends will bear watching. This also applies in the private activities, where there may be much enjoyment, festivity, social and emotional pleasure.

Santa and the WHITE ROSE

PRINCESS HILDUR MEETS THREE WITCHES

HILDUR rushed down the stone stairs sobbing under her breath, "Oh, I must find my opal." The stair turned and turned and finally it ended in a fine big room of white stones. In the corner sat the most frightening, tiny woman. She chuckled when she saw Hildur.

"So," said the witch—because that's what she was—"we have a Princess as a visitor today."

"Oh, please," said Hildur, "give me back my opal. I shall be late to the dance and my father will be displeased."

"No hurry," said the witch. "Tell me about your party I haven't been up to the surface for a hundred years now. I'd like some news."

Hildur choked back her fear and told as much as she could.

The old witch watched her and she seemed satisfied with Hildur's truthfulness. So she said, "what will you give me for telling you where the opal is?"

"Oh, anything," said Hildur and she held out her hands.

"Not so fast," said the witch. "I'm in no hurry. Will you give me the first wish you have after you become 21?"

"Oh, yes," said Hildur.

"Then open that white door and follow the stairs," said the witch.

* * *

SO HILDUR did as she was told and there she found more stairs.

She hurried down those. They also opened into a room. But this one glowed silver. In the corner sat another evil-looking, tiny woman She was a second witch.

"Well, well, a Princess!" she chuckled. "Tell me about the world above. I haven't been there for a hundred years."

Hildur had half expected this, so she hurriedly told all about her party that day and she wound up with, "please, do tell me where my opal is."

The witch looked pleased with Hildur's story, so she said, "What will you give me if I tell you where to look?"

"Oh, most anything," said Hildur.

"Will you give me your second wish after you become 21?"

"Oh, certainly," said Hildur.

"Well, then, open that silver door and follow the stairs," said the witch. So Hildur opened the door and again she hurried down stairs and then she stepped into a golden room, and again she saw a tiny, old witch in the corner.

* * *

THIS witch, too, chuckled and said, "Well, we have a Princess today. Tell me about the world above. I haven't seen it for a hundred years." So again Hildur told her all about the white pony, the opal, her father and mother, and the dance and concert planned for the evening, and then she wound up, "Please, give me my opal."

"What will you give me for the opal?" asked the witch "Will you give me the third wish you have after you become 21?"

"Oh, certainly," said Hildur and she held out her hands.

The witch leaned toward her and put the opal in her hands. "O, think you," said Hildur "and now I must hurry or I shall be late for the party." So she ran up all the stairs she had come down. Suddenly she was in the red rose garden again, and the hole in the ground closed up as though it had never been there. Hilbur said nothing to anyone about her strange journey. But she was to feel very badly about it years later.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, DECEMBER 6, 1941.

Drive carefully tomorrow—a number of motorists failed to heed the warning last week—with the usual result.

According to China's foreign minister, "Japan is the weakest link in the Axis chain"—which leaves Italy stronger than supposed.

In the midst of today's turmoil it is hard to realize that the important issue of five years ago was whether a fifth suit helped contract bridge.

Ideal Time for Christmas Buying

STARTING TONIGHT Mansfield stores will be open three Saturday nights until 9 o'clock, for the convenience of Christmas buyers who find it difficult to shop during the day.

Today marks the end of another of the few remaining weeks before Christmas and delightful weather through a great part of the week gave added impetus to early gift-buying—with some fortunate persons reporting near-completion of their gift lists.

For tonight's trade, and through next week, Mansfield stores will be amply stocked with a wide variety of attractive gift merchandise and seasonable goods of all kinds—and "early shopping" is still being urged upon those who wish to make selections from complete stocks—many items in which cannot be secured later.

As is always the case, a certain percentage of people will put off their Christmas buying until the last possible minute, but those who shop early in the season, early in the week and early in the day, have many advantages, including more time for selection and better attention from clerks than can be given during the final rush days.

By reading the merchandising messages of progressive Mansfield stores in The News-Journal, to get suggestions of suitable gifts and where to find them, and by shopping as early as you can make it convenient, you will be adding much to your own enjoyment of the holiday season and assuring pleasure for those who are to be recipients of your thoughtfully selected gifts.

Meeting Priorities Problems

THE PINCH of priorities is really beginning to be felt. And it is being felt by the individual consumer, no less than by businesses which are no longer able to obtain adequate quantities of materials which were once abundant.

As the defense effort gains momentum and production soars upward, the consumer's problems will become more severe. He may not be able to walk into a store and purchase precisely what he wants. Other articles he is used to may become excessively costly.

That, however, should not be cause for worry and despair. There are plenty of inexpensive substitutes for practically everything that is becoming scarce or expensive. And there is where the need for consumer education comes in.

The retail stores of the country are doing this on a wide scale. In cooperation with government bureaus, they are passing on to the buyer invaluable information. They are showing him how one article can take the place of another satisfactorily, and save him money. In the case of foods, they are issuing recipes which instruct the housewife in how to make highly palatable dishes out of inexpensive and common foods with high nutritional qualities.

A world war must enforce changes in the manner of living of all. But much of the shock can be eliminated if the public is shown how to best and most easily adapt itself to changing times and conditions.

There are Times To Be Suspicious

ONE LINE from an early-day melodrama sticks in mind. It was where the village constable explained, "It's my business to be suspicious."

Unfortunately, such an attitude seems advisable in many instances, but more especially in business dealings with strangers.

There's the case of the Mansfield young man who was gypped out of $275 on representations that a story he had written would be published in book form and that he would profit by royalties on sales.

The fact that the operator of this publishing racket was convicted this week, on charges of using the mails to defraud, is small consolation to the youth who was thus swindled out of hard earned money.

Securing publication of a book, especially a first book by an unknown author, is not an easy matter, and quick acceptance of a book-length novel may well be regarded with suspicion—assuredly so if payment is asked to meet the cost of publication.

The same applies in connection with offerings of aspiring song writers and amateur poets, and unless there is willingness to pay for the publication of what is termed "vanity writing" acceptance by firms which ask payment from authors had best be disregarded, or investigated thoroughly before any payments are made.

It is also just as well to be suspicious of itinerant book peddlers who offer special inducements to a few "prominent citizens"—of whom you are one—as such a "special offer" is almost certain evidence that a gyp game is being perpetrated.

Improvement In Army Cooking

SOMETHING remarkable seems to have happened to army cooking. There have been hints of it in letters from the boys in camp acknowledging that the food was good. To old timers, with memories of grub problems in former wars, that has seemed unnatural. Some have concluded that maybe these young fellows just don't understand about grub. Now in the first World war, and still more so back in the Spanish-American war—and so it goes.

But to the general amazement of veterans, and also of mothers, evidence multiplies that most of the enlisted men are probably getting better food, more nourishing and in more variety, than they have been accustomed to at home. And that puts the mothers on a spot. They are glad the boys are fed so well, but they don't like to see any impersonal outfit of cooks getting the credit, and especially they don't want their boys finding fault with their food when they get back home.

Trouble looms in that direction, judging from the statement of a professional "nutritionist." She says the nation's eating habits will be changed for the better by those same lads, with their higher standards, on their return.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Mighty interesting to see C. Aubrey Smith and Hobart Bosworth in town at the same time. These youngsters would make the Quiz Kids grow gray with anxiety.

Smith, at 78, has outlived most of his theatrical managers and has built a solid half-century in the theater, playing in films and on stages all over the world.

Bosworth, a mere 74, went west to die some 40 years ago and is still laughing. He went west at his doctor's orders to paint and rest during his last few years. But he's still kicking, the lung ailment forgotten. "I'm the daddy of 'em all," he says, speaking of the old time actors. He has just finished a picture called "They Died With Their Boots On"

As for Smith, his first Broadway appearance was in 1896 . . . His last was in 1928 . . . And now he is back on Broadway with Grace George in "Spring Again." . . . For him, it is.

* * *

TEA dancing is not the vogue it once was in New York. Saturday afternoons used to be great adventures in the hotels of Manhattan, where the college kids in coonskin coats that hung to their heels gathered for afternoon rendezvous. The hub of this excitement was the Biltmore . . . A famous meeting place was "under the clock" in the Biltmore lobby. . . . But that was long ago, in the twenties and before the Crash. It was the heyday of the flapper age when everybody quoted F. Scott Fitzgerald.

The other afternoon I happened to be in Grand Central terminal seeing some friends off to Detroit. . . . From there it was only a step to the Commodore, where Vaughn Monroe's orchestra was playing. . . . It was Saturday afternoon . . . I sat in for awhile and watched the kids, with the light in their eyes, dancing to sentimental and brisk, double-time tunes . . . When they weren't dancing, they were standing in front of the bandstand, watching the musicians . . . It was the first time in a long time that I had seen anything like it . . . Maybe the vogue, with Mr. Monroe's help, is on the way back.

* * *

EVER since Mary Astor "played" a piano in Bette Davis's picture, "The Great Lie," every school girl, halfback and cop has been whistling Tschaikowsky's Piano Concerto in B-flat Minor. I suppose a dozen recordings have been made, some under the title of "Tonight We Love," others under "Concerto For Two" . . . It has been interesting to watch the different "treatment" the boys have given this number, and some of the results have been extremely worthwhile . . . Still better than the adaptations, though, is the original . . . The recordings I think are wonderful are with Horowitz at the piano and the NBC Symphony orchestra, Toscanini conducting . . . It does things to your heart.

FROM OUT THE DEPTHS

West Episode Speeds Lobby Probe

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

LOBBYING is rampant in Washington, as well as confusion. Congress has started to investigate. It's about the 'steenth such investigation within the memories of present day lawmakers, but this is an exceptionally lively one, owing to its intermixture into the emergency situation.

Charles West

Ex-Congressman Charles West of Ohio really precipitated the current outburst by suing to collect fees from interests for which he claims to have obtained government contracts.

Out-of-town business visitors in the capital undoubtedly do need guides to steer 'em about among the multiplicity of newly created agencies and it's a legitimate enough service, which has attained plenty of proportions. Lobbying, however, involves "fixing." Some sort of influence is supposed to be exerted by the lobbyist in behalf of his client, and his function's to exert the right kind of it upon the correct officials. It may be political, it may be social and conceivably it could be financial.

A peculiar feature of the latest quiz, and of all those which have preceded it, is that the investigators invariably proceed upon the assumption that it's the lobbyist who's the villain. No attention's paid to the officials, if any, whom he influences. The whole theory is that lobbying is the evil to be probed, not being successfully lobbied.

Small business has an acute interest in the pending inquiry, and so has organized labor.

Little industrialists, who can adapt their plants to defensive and lease-lending production, naturally want contracts, to assure 'em of priority supplies of raw materials, to keep 'em in operation.

Bigwigs Better Lobbyists.

The government also wants to keep 'em going, instead of having 'em shut down and throw their workers out of employment. Furthermore their collective output's desired, always provided that they are adaptable. There's an evident official tendency, though, to let contracts to the biggest kind of companies. The peewees' version is that this is because the mastodons out-lobby 'em, being able to pay for expensive talent at it.

The official account is that it's more convenient to deal with a monster industry at a single swipe, rather than in detail, with a lot of picayune manufacturers. But the scheme, it's explained, is to have the wholesale contractor take care of as much of his order as his plant's equal to, and sub-order the rest from the little fellows.

For one thing, the big boys don't sub-order as generally as is desired. They prefer to keep their business for themselves, even if they're slow with deliveries.

Some of 'em do sub-order, though. But how, ask the peewees, do they do it? Why, the peewees answer themselves, an elephantine concern gets a huge contract from Uncle Sam at a first rate profit and then sub-orders from a bunch of peewees, at a second or third rate profit to the peewee outfit, and scoops the difference into its own coffers. The peewees have to stand for it or they don't get their sub-contracts, can't get priorities for raw materials, as defensive producers, and consequently can't keep going.

Organized labor's complaint is that it's flim-flammed by the sub-contracting process.

Why Labor Objects.

The unions, as we all know, want governmental contracting done only with closed shop companies, and officialdom, to appease 'em, sticks to that rule, not 100 per cent, but pretty strictly.

Yes, but, say union spokesmen, a whale of an industry, operating on a closed shop basis, gets a contract, and then sub-contracts with a swarm of open shop little critters—open shoppiness being the essential reason, argue the unionists, why the minnows can afford to let the leviathans assimilate more than their fair share of the profits. Not that the minnows like to acquiesce, but they must, or quit altogether.

The contention is that superior lobbying is what gives big business its alleged stranglehold on the situation.

That's what the congressional investigators are investigating.

The lobbyists, though, are the cusses the inquisitors are on the trail of, not lobby-ized officialdom.

Listen World!

Losing Traction

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

HAD a nasty half hour the other day. You've probably been through the same thing yourself, so you know how it feels. I was driving on a narrow, mountain road, not much more than a trail, when a hind wheel skidded and lost traction. There we were—hanging over eternity—whizzing frantically and getting exactly nowhere.

Yes, of course—I should have had chains. I'd been warned. Or, lacking chains, a shovel. Best yet, kept to a safer road. And I had ample time to think of all that as I pawed air and tried not to swallow my tonsils. But those were certainly shuddery seconds scrambling about for grass, sticks, stones—anything to brace that whirling wheel.

Afterwards—bouncing thankfully home—I felt plenty philosophic.

How often, thought I to myself, I've handed myself just such a dirty deal. Not in a flivver, but rambling along through life, coming unexpectedly on a stretch of muck I hadn't expected—and losing traction.

Best thing a woman does is lose traction! Men aren't such slouches at it, either! Male or female, we've all known circumstances when the old grip didn't work. And there we were—sunk in some mire of discouragment or grief or plain cussedness—whirling around and around in dizzy circles, getting exactly nowhere.

Those sick and aimless hours when, to save your neck, you can't seem to sink your teeth into life again. Everyone sorry for you or mad at you or giving you advice. Telling you what a fool you've been to get into such a mess, and what precautions you should have taken. And you wishing you could murder them—yet knowing, darned well, that it was all your own fault.

There you stuck, hour after hour, day after day—year after year, sometimes—in the same spot, your frantic mind going around and around in the same whirl. The same old thoughts, the same old tears and fears over and over and over. The same old self-pity slippery, slimy self-pity, with no solid, healthy substance that a clutching soul can grip.

Lost traction! That's had many a life stopped during these last four years. Maybe it has you stopped now. What's to do? Do you want to do something with your flivver—FIND SOMETHING TO BRACE YOURSELF.

Yes, of course, you should have had chains. Fortified yourself against such an accident—avoided ricks, saved your money, kept to a better road. But, oh shucks! Who does? It's too late now to worry over that. Besides—maybe you're going to profit more from this buggy ride than you ever would have by playing safe!

However, that pleasing thought, while comforting, won't put you back on the highway again. So get busy! Find a bracer—anything solid—anything that will stop your whirling in dizzy circles and restore your aim, interest AND SELF-RESPECT.

Self respect—that's the thing that holds you on the highway—keeps you out of the slime of self-pity. And work will give you self-respect. If you can't find a job, make one. I knew an idle man who saved himself from a drunkard's suicide during the depression by building sewing table for his wife.

He had always loved wood work—had a few tools in the garage. One small job called for another. He was soon making things for the neighbors—and with each successful job a little of his old confidence came back; he gripped life more firmly. Today he's back in the game again, hitting on all sixteen.

And I know a woman who saved her marriage and her own sanity by setting up a tiny "hot lunch room" for school children in her block. Turned an empty basement into a gay cafeteria—using packing box furniture at first.

Work—study—friendliness—they'll all give you traction again. And, boy, traction is certainly a Grand Feeling after you've been looping the loop! Am I telling YOU!

Farmers Tell Congress.

The National Grange probably represents more accurately than any other farm organization the prevailing opinion of the rural population of America. When, therefore, it urges a definite policy in public affairs, its influence is not likely to be disregarded.

At the meeting of the National Grange in Worcester, Mass., recently, strikes in defense industries were declared detrimental to the national welfare. Congress was urged to take action to prevent such strikes. Copies of the resolution were sent to the President and to leading members of Congress. American farmers always are consistently patriotic, and this expression of sentiments is in keeping with the expected attitude of the Grange.—Detroit News.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Dec. 6, 1917 was the date on which occurred the Halifax disaster. Explosion of a munitions ship in the harbor resulting from a collision caused a fire that laid one-third of the city in ruins; killed 1,226, with 400 others missing, and destroyed 3,000 homes. Property damage was estimated at $40,000,000. The ship carried 4,000 tons of high explosives at the time of the collision.

Summary of Week's Happenings

Senate Ponders Strike Prevention, Action Deferred on Price Control

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

LABOR relations took a brighter turn during the week, but a rash of strikes and threatened strikes had worn out the tempers of 252 U. S. representatives. They outvoted 136 fellow representatives in passing a strict bill to check work stoppages in defense industry.

The bill, introduced by Rep. Smith (D. Va.), would:

1—Forbid strikes unless they are approved by a majority of the workers in secret voting.

2—Require a 60-day cooling-off period, giving the Defense Mediation board time to try to settle the strike.

3—Forbid violence, boycotts and sympathetic and jurisdictional strikes.

4—Freeze the closed or open-shop status of a plant for the rest of the emergency.

5—Require unions to register with the government.

6—Deny unemployment compensation and the benefits of the Wagner and Social Security acts to workers or unions violating the new act.

The bill was passed Wednesday after a session of complicated parliamentary procedure. First Rep. Vinson (D. Ga.) offered a bill dealing only with strikes in naval equipment plants. Then Rep. Ramspeck (D. Ga.) offered a stouter substitute.

Smith introduced his bill as a substitute for the Ramspeck measure, and by an alert maneuver got the house to accept it for consideration. All three bills called for the government to seize strike-bound defense plants. Republicans bitterly opposed this idea, so Smith struck that clause out of his bill. A few hours later it was on its way to the senate, where its fate was in question.

Early in the week the CIO legislative conference adopted a resolution pledging its help in solving labor disputes but opposing all restrictive labor legislation. It said bills now before congress would "turn free labor into slave labor."

The National Association of Manufacturers called for a ban on strikes over the closed shop issue.

At Home

Price Bill Chugs Along.

President Roosevelt requested congress four months ago to consider an anti-inflation price control bill. The house banking committee took three months to whip one into shape that met the administration's approval, and the house took about a week, after it got around to it, to pass it.

Mangled considerably by the house, the bill now has gone to the senate, and Washington believed it would be another month, at least, before it would receive final passage. Administration leaders hoped some of the provisions stricken out could be put back in again in the senate or in conference committee.

As passed by the house, the bill provides for:

1. A price administrator with power to clamp a ceiling, or top price, on any commodity that threatened to reach the inflation point.

2. A five-member board of review with power to overrule the administrator.

3. Protection for the farmer by prohibiting the administrator from setting a ceiling on any farm product lower than the highest of these three levels:

A. 110% of parity (the price aimed at giving the farmer the same purchasing power as he had in 1909-14).

B. The Oct. 1, 1941, market price.

C. The average price for 1919-29. (The administration contends this would be the ceiling in most cases and that it would allow prices to rise more than 20%.)

4. Ceilings on rents in defense industry areas.

5. A program under which the government can buy or sell in order to stimulate production in industries which have a narrow margin of profit.

The house threw out a proposal to license the sale of commodities for which a ceiling had been set. This was suggested by the administration as a way to enforce the law. The bill was changed so much in all that Rep. Short (R. Mo.) said "I doubt that a single member of the committee knows now what's in this bill."

* * *

The Farmer's Outlook.

The agriculture department says U. S. farmers are ending 1941 with one of the best estimated cash incomes in recent years—$11,200,000,000—but that 1942 will see it climb to $13,000,000,000.

The department forecast increasing prices, both for things that farmers sell and the things they buy, but noted that "Recently, prices paid by farmers have been rising more than prices received, thereby lessening the purchasing power of farm products."

Department officials were worried, too, about the possibility of a shortage in farm machinery. OPM has allotted only enough materials to build 80% of the farm equipment sold the last three months of 1940. Many farmers have reported they will be unable to reach their production goals unless they can get more equipment.

* * *

Sights Set on Lobbyists.

Outside the house and senate chambers in Washington are hallways, or lobbies. People who want to get things through congress often buttonhole congressmen there and talk to them about their pet ideas. They may take the legislator to dinner or to a party, but the practice of trying to influence congressional action—wherever it is done—has come to be known as "lobbying."

Since the defense boom got under way, Washington has been crawling with a record number of lobbyists, some toting heavy purses. Last week-end President Roosevelt gave his public OK to proposals to curb them, and a few days later the house merchant marine and military committees began investigations.

At one time there was a regulation that required a retiring federal employe to wait two years before he could engage in promoting government contracts. FDR said he thought this was a good rule.

* * *

Morale Behind the Lines.

Soon after the sinking of the Reuben James, Secretary Knox reported a fall-off in navy enlistments, and last week-end he made public a letter which the navy said had been circulated among parents of dead sailors as part of an "organized campaign to undermine civilian morale."

The letter was sent to the parents of a youth at first reported lost on the Reuben James. It said "This tragedy might have been averted had the pleas of millions of our people all over this land been heeded by our officials." It was circulated by "We The Mothers, Mobilized for America, Inc."

The parents sent it to Knox with this comment: "We reject sympathy from such an organization. They belong with the Nazi. Wipe them out of the U. S. A."

Abroad

Conflicting Claims.

Russians proclaimed that the Germans had been thrown back from Rostov, key to the Caucasus, and had lost more than a month of hard-won gains along the north shore of the Sea of Azov. A London broadcast said Hitler had rushed Field Marshal Von Brauchitsch to the Ukraine to "stop the rout at all costs."

A German military spokesman said the Nazis had fallen back to avoid "unnecessary losses" from fighting with civilians. The Russian counter-attack was dismissed as "only a diversion."

Before Moscow the Russians claimed that the fighting had turned in their favor, too.

Wednesday, Berlin announced the Russians had been driven out of Hango, Baltic Sea port, and that 6,000 officers and men aboard a fleeing troopship were captured.

* * *

Chain of Bases.

As U. S.-Japanese relations stormed on toward a showdown, reliable Washington sources reported that the U. S. were cooperating with the British and possibly the Free French in setting up a 5,000-mile chain of military bases between Hawaii and Australia.

The American navy has nearly completed an elaborate patrol plane base on the tiny island of Palmyra, and a hint of military activity on another pinpoint of land, Britain's Christmas Island, came recently with a navy warning to shipping to keep its distance.

People

Capital 'U' or Capital 'M'?

Last week-end the Vatican announced it had awarded a $2,500 prize to Dr. Harlow Shapley, Harvard astronomer, for his contributions to research. Dr. Shapley commented:

"It's pretty generally recognized, especially among eminent churchmen, that modern knowledge of the universe has a direct bearing on religious concepts."

Smilingly he added: "Naturally the astronomer spells the word 'universe' with a capital 'U' and the word 'man' with a small 'm'—whereas the church may prefer to reverse the capitalization."

Christmas As Usual.

Prices are getting steep, but Mrs. Roosevelt hopes that American mothers and fathers will be sure to include the traditional Santa Claus items in this year's Christmas stockings. She told a questioner at her press conference that gifts shouldn't be limited just to practical things.

BEWARE DEEP FINESSES

THE BETTER the player, the more deep finesses you will usually see him try, especially when engaged in low contracts and most especially when working at 1-No Trump. He will lead toward nines, eights, sevens and sometimes lower cards and put them forward in an effort to win a trick or force out an honor. Against such a fellow it behooves you to be ready to "split honors" oftener than against a weaker cardsman—putting on a 10 from J-10, a J from Q-J, and so on.

North, who was Scott Miller, St. Louis veteran, managed this hand so neatly in the Western Individual Masters' championship that he took as many tricks with his own weak hand as with the rather fair dummy. To do this, he had to lure West into one single simple little mistake.

East opened his spade 4, which rode to the K. and the 6 brought the 3. 10 and A. The diamond 2 was led and West did not put on his 10, but the 4. So the 9 forced the A. East would obviously present a trick if he now repeated spades, so he led the heart 3. West playing the K over the 5. The heart 9 went to the A, and the diamond 3 was led. Here is where West surely should have played his 10, but he put on the 5 and the 9 won. The Q was cashed, the club 3 led to the A and the diamond K taken, followed by the good heart Q and spade Q. That produced an extra trick

If West had split his honors on the second diamond lead, only two tricks could have been taken in that suit instead of three.

Christmas Party Planned at Meet Of Social Club

Plans to hold a Christmas party on Dec. 19 at the North Lake park pavilion were made at the meeting of the Woodville Social club held Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Donald Bowden, South Main street road. Mrs. Catherine Eckstein served as associate hostess. Mrs. Carl Dupre, Mrs. Jack Yoha, Mrs. Ward Callendar and Mrs. Rhea Jones were appointed to handle arrangements for the Christmas party.

Mrs. Harold Mast, president, conducted the business session. Members will meet at the home of Mrs. Tom Long on South Main street on Jan. 9 to sew on comforts. Bunco was the diversion of the evening. Prizes were won by Mrs. Eva Swisher and Miss Faye Swisher. Luncheon was served the 25 members in attendance at small tables decorated with lighted tapers and Christmas appointments.

Alpha Nu Omega Sorority Plans Christmas Party

Alpha Nu Omega sorority held a meeting at the home of Miss Rose Palumbo, 118 Park avenue east, recentlly. During the business session plans were made to have a gift exchange at the next meeting which will be held Dec. 18 at the home of Miss Mary Pinka. Miss Mary Palmer, a guest in attendance, presented several vocal selections.

Games and contests were diversions of the evening. Prizes were won by the Misses Jean Griffith and Evelyn Swethick. Luncheon was served at the close of the evening at a long table attractively decorated with fall flowers and Christmas appointments.

Mrs. Chase Opens Home to Members Of Circle Three

Hostess to members of Circle Three of the First Presbyterian church recently was Mrs. B. L. Chase, who entertained at her home, 84 Carpenter road. Mrs. C. B. Gibson was associate hostess. After a brief business session conducted by Mrs. R. C. Stanton, an interesting program was presented with devotionals given by Mrs. I. L. Fisher.

Using phonograph recordings for accompaniment, Miss Marilyn Little sang a group of songs. Story of "The Other Wise Man" by Henry Van Dyke, was told by Miss Carol Cockrell. On Jan. 8, Circle Two and Three will have a joint meeting at the church with the employed girls of both groups as sponsors.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

DR TWITCHELL look at Lillian for a long second after she has put her question. It was an appraising look, as if he were deciding how far she was to be trusted with the truth.

"No, there is no danger that I can see now, if he obeys my orders," he said. "There is grave danger if he disobeys.

"But I must get down to the men in the basement," he went on hurriedly.

"Miss Whitlock," said Dr. Twitchell, "will you come down with me? There is work for you there."

"What about talking?" Lillian asked.

"There is no ban on his talking," the surgeon answered. "He may talk, and so may you, all you wish. Only don't let him get excited, and don't let him move around. Especially, keep his arms quiet."

Madge Not Needed.

"I understand," Lillian said. "Do you — need Mrs. Graham also?"

"She will stay up here, of course," my father said, taking the decision upon himself. And then he, the surgeon and the nurse were gone, and Harry was looking from Lillian to me with puzzled inquiry.

"I don't get that bloke at all," he said irritably. "I haven't got a bad wound. I know enough for that. I had plenty of experience when I was an ambulance driver across. I lost a bit of blood, I guess, but not enough to put me out of business the way he says. And, you know Sweet, don't you, what I must do soon?"

She paled and flinched, then she put a steady hand on his unwounded arm.

"Yes, I know," she said, "but that must wait now. You do not have to do what you planned right away, now that we have a certain roundabout contact with Marion. And who knows what improvement two or three days may make in your condition?"

He gave a groan at that, a despairing sound that caromed its echo around the room

"Two or three days;" he exclaimed. "Two or three centuries!"

"We have a more imminent problem than that," I said, anxious to get his mind off the surgeon's prohibition.

"Oh, indeed yes," Lillian assented.

"What's that?" her husband growled. There is no other word for his tone.

"My trip to the restaurant tomorrow night," Lillian said. "I must go, and yet I can't leave you."

"It isn't a question of leaving me," Harry was suddenly alert, tense. "You must not go without me. I never intended that you should go alone. Oh, ostensibly, of course, to fool those rats. But I meant to be there, close at hand with a make-up that would defy detection by any of them."

His tone was not boastful, but held the quiet confidence of a man who has tested and tried his own skill.

"I knew you'd planned something like that," Lillian said with a loving glance at him. "But that doesn't help things now. And, Dearest, I simply must go. I haven't been thinking straight for the last half hour."

"You won't need me for the few hours I'm gone. Miss Whitlock will be here, and I won't stay as long as I did before. And the Chief, I am sure, will have some man at the restaurant who will look out for me."

Harry Underwood turned his head on the pillow and looked at his wife with a determination blazing in his eyes that effectually silenced her.

Lillian Yields to Harry.

"Listen to me," he said slowly. "As surely as there is a God above us, if you go to that restaurant tomorrow night, I shall go also, even if twenty doctors and nurses try to stand in the way."

Lillian shut her eyes and I thought for an instant she would swoon. Then she opened them and looked with unutterable sadness at her husband.

"You leave me no choice," she said. "I cannot risk your life. But oh, Marion, darling!"

"Will you both listen to me for a minute?" I asked quietly.

CHAPTER X

"I say, Lennon! What the devil ails you?" asked the low rasping voice that made him start. Silas Higgins had entered the cage noiselessly.

"Nothing at all, sir. I was just a little surprised . . ."

Silas edged up and peered down at the two checks on the counter. He made a queer little noise in his throat, snatched at the nearest slip and looked at the endorsement as if to assure himself that his eyes were not deceiving him.

"You mean to tell me Delaine deposited those?"

"Just now, sir. One . . . ten thousand . . . for himself. The other one to the credit of Miss Delaine."

"Hm. Drawn by the Lawhead Corporation . . . certified, too. Good God! Did that worthless shrimp own any of that factory land, Lennon?"

"I didn't suppose so, Mr. Higgins. But I . . ."

"I happened to be calling at the Delaines' one evening when Mr. Dennison came to see Andy. I remember it was the first day Mr. Dennison was in town." Perhaps he should not have mentioned that, but it was too late now.

"I'm going to look into that. I suppose you realize that deposit makes one of our best accounts. Never supposed I'd have to be civil to that fellow. Humph! There's one good thing. It won't be long in getting into circulation. He'll spend it like water."

Wige drew a deep sigh, picked up the checks and laid them in a drawer with other receipts.

Meanwhile, the "worthless shrimp" lingered in the sunshine that bathed the bank steps. His hands were thrust in his pockets as he stared thoughtfully into the distance. For the first time in his life he felt a sensation of complete security. There was no particular elation, but the world seemed different. It was different.

"I don't get it," he murmured in near bewilderment. He touched his small mustache as if to reassure himself of that one reality. "My faith, I don't get it. I should be going to Tip Gordon's and order that car for ducklet. Instead, I'm going to get a hamburger at the Greek's then go back and press pants."

Carol Delaine had a dim recollection that she had seen her name on the cover of the first bank book she took from Andy's hand. But it was the single entry glimpsed in each one that stunned her, sent her senses reeling. Fifteen thousand dollars. Two fifteen thousand dollars made thirty thousand dollars. Thirty thousand dollars. Then Andy's voice penetrated her dazed consciousness. It seemed to be coming from a great distance.

"Take it easy, ducklet. If you're going to swoon, try for the bed. You're too heavy for me to handle."

"I . . . I'm all right . . ." Nevertheless, she sank down on a chair and looked up helplessly into her father's face. "I don't understand," she told him in a small voice.

"You don't have to, if it's going to do that for you. Oh, I forgot." He went to the dresser, rummaged out a pair of check books which he tossed into Carol's lap. "You can start practicing any time you like. It's all yours."

"But . . . but, Andy . . ." Large tears gathered in her eyes and rolled down her white cheeks.

"Come, now! It isn't so serious as all that. Darned if you aren't making me feel foolish!" Andy's voice was slightly husky. "If you must know, your old man turned a deal a while back. That's your share of the profits." He thrust a handkerchief at her.

"My share?" she said, and used the big square of linen thankfully.

"That's right. I kept a bit for myself."

"Where did you get it, Andy? I want to know." Carol was more composed but there was doubt, something almost like fright, in her brown eyes.

"Oh, I sold a tract of land. I didn't need it and that plane company thought they could use it for a flying field. That's all there is to it. I let them off cheap, at that."

"Andy! You didn't own any of that land!"

"I did so. At least I owned an option on it. Same thing."

"I don't know what you mean." Something in the back of her mind she was beginning to connect this with Mr. Dennison's visit. But it didn't yet make sense. She tried to concentrate on Andy's airy explanation.

"It's done every day. Take . . . well, take a new oil field for instance. Somebody brings in a gusher. Right away people buy options on adjoining land where there could be more oil. An option is merely the privilege of buying the land later if one wants to. They're usually cheap . . . if one's quick enough. That's what I did. Struck oil. See?"

"Ye . . . es." It sounded all right. But there was that hateful suggestion Mr. Dennison had made about falling among thieves! She steadied her voice resolutely. "Andy, was it . . . was it perfectly honest?" Everything in the world hinged on his answer.

"My word for it," he answered simply. His eyes met hers without flinching.

"Then it's all right. I . . . I'd never hurt your feelings, Andy.

"Of course," he assured her. "You had the right to ask that. But I had to know. It seems so . . ." darling. I'm glad you did because . . . well, it was a shrewd move, if I do say it. There isn't a man in Jericho who wouldn't have done the same thing if he could and held out for a bigger profit. It wasn't such an original idea, after all. But you can make up your mind that some people will be sore that I beat them to a good thing. They'll go so far as to hint . . . you know. You can afford to overlook it."

"But it means we're . . . we're rich!"

"Oh, I wouldn't say that. Just a little stake to comfort us in our old age. And it gives me a chance to do something for you. I never have, you know. That's all that matters. I'll enjoy my funeral more, now."

"Oh, Andy, please! Don't say that!" She drew a long quivering breath. Her eyes filled again, but she managed a smile. "I can't quite get used to it. Does Auntie know?"

"No. I had to tell you first. I suppose I'd better break the news to her before she picks it up from the neighbors. Do you suppose she'll up my rates here? Cassie has been having delusions of grandeur since Amos came to us, I think."

Carol laughed a little shakily at that. Amos was Mr. Davis, although his first name was George. He had taken a great fancy to Andy and the two played pinochle almost every evening. It was Carol who had christened the newcomer "Amos." Her father stood looking at her with a slightly worried expression.

"Maybe I didn't go about this tactfully. After all, I've had more of a chance to get used to the idea. I shouldn't have given you such a jolt. There's an idea. One good jolt deserves another." He hurried to his wardrobe and came back with a bottle. "This will steady things and I believe we owe a little toast to ourselves, at that. This bottle top holds a perfectly lady-like slug. Same's that . . . Down with it."

Closing Rally Wins for South Over Mansfield Tygers

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

"If," said Elwood Kammer, Massillon assistant coach and scout extraordinary, "I had been picking an all-opponent team for Massillon this fall, I'd have four spots all set before I ever started.

"I'd just pick the two Mansfield ends, the center, and that line-backing quarterback, and go ahead from there. I'd have Joe Romano, Bob Winbigler, Paul Dietzel and Bill Doolittle in there for sure. After that, I'd start studying to find out the rest of the all-star team."

* * *

"Kamm" was doing a bit of after-dinner chinning with Coach Tom Conley of John Carroll, Alex Zirin of the Cleveland Plain Dealer and your correspondent when he unburdened himself of the above emphatic statements.

We had just been talking about how silly are all these all-star team selections from all corner-lot to all-American, and the many rackets that are worked to place different lads in just as many different positions, and I had just delivered the ponderous opinion that the only true evaluation of a player's ability came in these all-opponent teams picked by the players themselves.

* * *

"The players themselves should know who the toughest boys were they played against," I argued.

* * *

Said Zirin: "The Plain Dealer hasn't picked an all-Cleveland team since way back around 1929 when I put four Cleveland Heights boys on the team."

"Alex," says I, you should know better than put any Cleveland Heights boys on such a team, because as soon as a Cleveland Heights boy is good enough to make even the Cleveland Heights team he is sent away to University school." (The Hess family lived for three years in the house directly in front of the main entrance of Cleveland Heights high school and is well acquainted with that particular brand of Tiger.)

* * *

"That I know," says Alex, "and such an uproar greeted the selections that I had no difficulty at all in persuading Sam Otis to discontinue forever and a happy day the selection of all-star teams in the future. And I am very happy about the whole thing.

"When the United Press asked me this fall for an all-Ohio high school team, I told them I could only recommend four players for such a team, Joe Poremba and Adamic of Cleveland and Joe Romano and Bill Doolittle of Mansfield. Poremba and Adamic made the team. I don't know why they didn't believe me on the other two."

Big Crowd Sees Lexington Win

LEXINGTON — A capacity crowd packed Lexington high gym last night to see the home team chalk up a 39 to 31 victory over Butler in a non-league basketball game.

Clever and Ritchie sparked the Lexington attack with 27 points between them. The score was tied in the first period 7-7, but Lexington stepped away to a 21-17 lead at the half, and stretched it to 31-24 at the third quarter.

Butler won the preliminary reserve game 19 to 17 in an overtime period.

Rams Take Union In Easy Win

Madison Chalks Up 37 to 12 Cage Victory.

THE Madison Rams set themselves up as a formidable court club last night by taking an easy 37 to 12 win over the Union High Indians on Ram Hill.

* * *

A blistering third quarter featured the fray, when the fast breaking Rams dumped in 9 points in 2 minutes which is really dunking the leather in anybody's ball game.

* * *

The game started out listlessly with Windsor throwing in the first tally on a one hand shot. Roberts followed with two points but it wasn't until the time clock showed an elapsed six minutes that Hahn threw in a side shot for the Indians to score their lone two points of the quarter which ended 8 to 6 after Roberts and Hammer broke fast to score.

The second period was a little better for the Indians with Gramley and E. Kuhn each hitting from the back court. The Rams just kept rolling along with eight more before the half totaling 16 to the Indians 6.

"Hotter than a depot stove," were the Rams third quarter and all the while they were pushing the Indians on the defense so that the Redskins couldn't get a decent throw at the hoop.

This accounted for the low shot average of the Indians. Time and again their long shots looked good only to roll off the rim into the hands of the fast breaking Rams who made quick work of bringing it down to their own bucket.

Gramley and Mawhorr played a fine floor game for Union, while Hahn scored half of the Indian points.

With a 35 to 10 score piled up, the Ram second team took over, Oswalt hit the hoop from under for the Union final two counters and Bishop tallied the Ram's final points ending the game at 37 to 12 for the Rams.

The preliminary game also went to Madison 18 to 13. The "Kid" Rams scored 11 in the first half while the last "Papooses" dumped in three. The Papooses came back strong in the last quarter with 8 to close the gap.

Bader and Bishop led the Madison scoring while the Union squad devided their scoring with McFadden, Knight and each getting 3 points.

ASHLAND — (AP) — Gilbert Dodds, who held the national collegiate cross country and two mile groups while at Ashland college, will leave tomorrow for Boston, Mass., where he will represent the Boston A. A. in indoor track meets.

City Seeking Alley Joust

Mansfield Bowlers Vote For 1943 Inter-City.

The Mansfield bowling association in a meeting at the Moose home last night voted to make a concerted effort to obtain the 1943 Inter-City tournament for Mansfield.

* * *

The association hopes to send at least 40 teams to this year's tournament at Lorain to pile up that mny votes toward obtaining the next joust.

* * *

Officers of the association also will make several visits to Lorain during the 1942 tourney which will be held over six or seven week-ends. A letter from the Chamber of Commerce pledged the support of that organization in the effort to gain the '43 tourney.

The association re-elected Art Hilborn president, Johnny Leppo first vice president, E. C. Geiger second vice president, Sherm Wentz, secretary.

Danville Wins Over Bellville

BELLVILLE — Danville high's Blue Devils, who last week won their opening game at Millersburg, continued on the victory trail here last night with a 27 to 22 decision over the Bellville Blue Jays.

Bellville took a 10-8 lead in the opening period, but Danville rallied for a 16-12 margin at the half, and increased it to 23-17 at the third quarter.

In the preliminary game Bellville reserves won 21-20.

Barry Makes Good As U.S.C. Mentor

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — Sam Barry, who became Southern California's football coach on very short notice last August, "will be with us a long, long time," says President Rufus B. Von KleinSmid.

Barry did a "whale of a job despite a shortage of material," Dr. Von KleinSmid told the school's homecoming banquet last night.

Barry, already basketball coach and football scout for the Trojans, succeeded Howard Jones, who died last June.

Birds Break Gilead String

Loudonville Wins 33-32 In Overtime Battle.

LOUDONVILLE — Mt. Gilead high school's basketball victory string of five straight games was snapped last night by Loudonville's Red Birds who presented Coach Leo Grimes with a 33 to 32 overtime triumph in his first game here.

* * *

Captain Bud Darling's looping shot from the corner decided the ball game in the extra period, after the regulation playing time ended with the score tied 31 to 31.

* * *

Mt. Gilead got away to a 6-4 lead in the first quarter, but Loudonville came back to knot the count at 14-14 at the half. Once more the Mounts took the lead in the third period at 24-20, but it was Mt. Gilead who had to tie the score at 31-31 and send the game into overtime.

Marietta led the Red Bird attack with 12 points, while Ward got 11 and Rhodeck 10 for Mt. Gilead.

Rockets Show Cage Strength

Toledo Appears Team To Beat For Title.

(By Associated Press)

The University of Toledo Rockets is "the team to beat" in Ohio's collegiate basketball circles.

The Rockets, perennial power in the cage sport, lost little time in establishing themselves as possible state champions this year in opening their season with a 77-26 triumph over a hapless Bluffton college squad last night.

* * *

The scoring spree, one of the highest totals in Toledo's history, was led by the Rocket co-captains, Bob Gerber and Bart Quinn. Gerber, elongated center from Akron, hit the nets for 23 points while Quinn contributed 19.

* * *

In other games on Buckeye courts last night, Otterbein defeated Cedarville 59 to 25; Marietta handed Rio Grande its second defeat of the week, 44 to 36, Xavier trounced Transylvania college of Lexington, Ky., 44 to 26, and Youngstown opened its season with a 43-30 verdict over Glenville State Teachers.

Leo Mogus, who tallied 348 points in 18 games last year, paced the Youngstown offensive with seven baskets and three charity tosses.

Columbus Cagers Mark Up 34-29 Victory

Game Decided In Last Four Minutes; Meet Findlay Tonight

MANSFIELD HIGH'S bucketball Tygers hadn't quite managed the change from football to the court game as they opened their 1941-42 cage season last night at Senior high gym before an almost capacity crowd, and they were edged by a hard-fighting Columbus South quintet 34 to 29.

But the Tygers didn't drop out of the ball game until the last four minutes of play. After trailing most of the way, they had rallied to close the South margin to just one point at that stage of the game, 27 to 26.

* * *

And then South got hot. In the next two minutes they racked up seven points while holding the Tygers scoreless and stepped out to a 34 to 26 lead with only two short minutes to go.

* * *

The Tygers weren't through yet. Battling right down to the finish, they came through with three more markers in the last two minutes to make it 29-34, but South wasn't seriously threatened.

Neither team could find the hoop in the first period, and three minutes and 15 seconds went by before Dietzel had a chance for a free point, and missed. It was four minutes and 25 seconds before Thompson broke the ice for South with a free toss. Thompson then got the first bucket on a one-hand shot from the circle and Mansfield took time out with the score 3 to 0 and the quarter nearly gone.

* * *

Winbigler sank a long shot from the side and Shiplet counted from the circle to give Mansfield a 4-3 edge at the quarter.

* * *

McDonald made good on a pair of free shots for South to start the second period, and Shiplet tied the score at 5-5 with another free toss. Jones, who made 13 points for South, got his first two on a follow shot, and Winbigler tied it up again at 7-7 on a side shot. South took time out.

Shiplet dribbled in for a one-hand shot from the circle. Moore got a free point for South, and Romano got one for Mansfield. Jones dribbled under the hoop for two points, knotting the count at 10-10.

Jones got an under-basket shot, Dietzel a free point and Marinello a sucker shot. Romano missed a free toss but Shiplet followed it in for a one-hander from the circle, making the score 13-14 at the half.

South spurted at the start of the third period as McDonald sank a pair of charity tosses, Jones tallied under the hoop, and Courtney connected on a one-hander from the side to make it 20-13.

Altamonte got a free point. Jones scored under the basket. Snowden got a free point. Thompson got away for a sucker shot and Jones tallied again under the hoop to make it 26-15.

* * *

Altamonte connected under the hoop, Dietzel got a free point, and Winbigler looped a shot from the circle to make it 20-26 at the third quarter.

* * *

Mansfield closed the gap early in the final stanza as Winbigler sank a long shot, Krupp dribbled in for a bunny, and Romano rang up a shot from the circle to make it 26-27 with four minutes to go.

Then South staged its game-winning rally. Thompson scored under the bucket, Courtney connected in the circle, Moore made good on a pair of free shots, and Courtney on one to stretch the count to 34-26. Shiplet, Hahn and Dietzel each tallied a free shot to end the scoring.

Tonight the Tygers go to Findlay.

"Woods and Waters"

By YUNCKER BROS.

The deepest place in the Pacific ocean yet found is off the island of Mindanao, in the Philippines group, where a depth of 35,400 feet has been sounded.

* * *

The humming bird is the smallest of all North American birds. Five hundred species are known to science and all are residents of the Western hemisphere. Not a single specie is found in any part of the Old World.

* * *

The mouse-colored whale shark is one of the most inoffensive of marine animals, yet the largest of fish. It reaches lengths of 50 feet or more, and when harpooned merely tries to swim away from its captors or dives into deeper water. Its jaws are huge but its teeth are tiny, as it feeds only on small animal life.

* * *

That noble bird, our wild turkey, has a short life span seldom exceeding five years, while the parrot often lives to the ripe old age of 50 years.

If he (or she) likes fishing, you can win their sincere thanks by giving fishing tackle this Christmas. You'll find a host of suggestions in Yuncker's complete stocks, including rods, reels, lines, tackle boxes, lures, etc. . . . for as much or as little as you wish to spend.

* * *

Because of the way his eyes are placed, a rabbit can look backward or forward without turning his head. What a great idea for pedestrians in these days of heavy traffic conditions

* * *

The prefix "Dr." would be appropriate before the name of a Canada goose. He is an astounding surgeon. One of these birds was recently seen in a refuge with a broken leg. He straightened out the leg with his beak and stood on the crippled limb for hours at a time. When he had to move, he used his wings in hopping along the ground. In a few weeks the broken leg was completely healed!

On only one night each year the night-blooming cereus, famous in the tropics, unfolds her lovely white blossoms, which are larger than saucers. Four hours from the time the bud begins to swell, the "queen of the night" is in gorgeous full bloom. Four hours later the flowers die.

NEED $100? HERE'S WHAT TO DO

Tell us how much you need, $20 to $500; how much you can repay monthly; and answer a few simple questions.

Loans made three ways: (1) on signature. (2) on car; (3) on furniture. No endorsers. Friends or relatives are not told. Fair treatment in case of sickness or unemployment. Payments include charges of 2% monthly on balances of $300 or less and ½% monthly on any remainder—the same rate to everyone. Nothing else to pay. To apply—phone, write or visit office. Money ready next day—or sooner if necessary.

LIGHTS OUT

BUENOS AIRES—(AP)—Pity the poor smoker. He used to get his matches free with the purchase of cigarets, cigars and tobacco. Retailers stopped the practice, however, blaming the rising cost of matches. Now the smoker has to pay five centavos (one and a quarter cents) for his "light."

BLUING AND ZOOING

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla.—(AP)—The best zoos use bluing to keep their polar bears white. Zookeeper Leo Blondin uses about a pint in the bath water of Court of Rome, the 620-pound polar at the Oklahoma City zoo.
